A: No, and neither does Python. The file is already open, and won't close until the process ends. You can use contextlib.closing to automatically close the file if an exception occurs, but if you want to be able to close it yourself, you should open it in the "a" mode instead: with open("file.xyz", "a") as f:

For example if i have a following xquery function: declare function local:prefix() { element { ('variable'||text())[preceding-sibling::[1][self::variable]] } }; I know that i can set the prefix of all elements like this: local:prefix('prefixname'); But how can i set the prefix automatically, so i don't have to manually add prefix to every element? A: You can write a custom function that takes a sequence of nodes and appends a prefix to each one and use it in your function: declare function local:prefix($nodes as node()) as node()* { if ($nodes) then $nodes[position() = 1]/node() [preceding-sibling::[1][self::[name() = 'variable']]] [self::*[name() = 'variable']] [] node-set($nodes) else () }; If 09e8f5149f
