Point: Fun is definitely overrated One would think the plight of Fun in 2010 stems from a number of factors, including an historic downturn in the economy and a changing media landscape. But I was surprised to read a new poll conducted by Adweek.com that shows a majority of us say the recession and related sluggish economy has made us more depressed. That's when I had my own epiphany: Fun is overrated. "We're more interested in creating a sustainable business. That's the kind of thing that's going to make us money," said Scott Scher, a former DreamWorks and 20th Century Fox executive who now works at E-Film, a media company with 1.5 million active users. Yes, we're all struggling through the great recession. As a result, some of us are dragging a little bit, too. But we're not ready to sink to the point of giving up all Fun, right? I like the idea that we're just a little more responsible. But does that mean we're not happy? Most of us still have a reasonable level of Fun. "Times are really tough right now," admitted Christy Moorhead, who works in advertising. "However, when times are tough, people work together more. It's been tough for everyone, and as a result, my attitude is that I'm not going to take it out on anyone," said Moorhead, a mom of four, including twins. "I think I'm a little more understanding of people." Isn't that the

It's time for a brand new FRANNY-themed movie! Going to be late 2016-ish. Was looking for someone with animation skills. To experience this #content, you will need to enable targeting cookies. Yes, we know. Sorry. Manage cookie settings . . You can really see the flaws of the game coming out in all aspects from the visuals to the story, but the main thing is you can't help but feel at a loss for words. Everything from the text from the menu to the ability to just surf the internet on your own map is completely broken. The game is so bad that you can easily literally use your phone as the main internet browser. Your wifi was from a server that has a lot of dead people on it, and you can't simply turn it off until you've played it out. The game also has really no balance whatsoever. It's a completely degenerated RPG, and it's pretty much the opposite of Mass Effect 2, Dragon Age 2, Fable 2, any other RPG, you name it. It's like a game made by a group of friends who only know about the game and its mechanics and don't know anything about the genre. This game does not represent the words 'RPG' or 'Fantasy' the words 'RPG' or 'Fantasy' no longer mean anything if the game actually goes for "Fantasy" and still only manages to give us a watered down "RPG" and then makes a game out of it. It's literally a game made for people who only learned about RPGs in the last 5 years, and they don't actually know what they're looking for in a game. This game is literally the opposite of what you expect, in fact it's so far from what you expect, and you never feel that the developer had actually tried to make a good game. You can literally say with such a broken game that this is a game made by inexperienced gamers, and it would still have a high chance of actually being accurate for them. Seriously, the game is just that bad, I can't even think of a word to describe it. I really don't know how people can praise this game so highly considering how bad it is. The game just really completely loses you. You can practically use your phone as your computer and can even turn off your network if you wanted to, and the game is so simplistic and unoptimized that it's like you're carrying a little car on your back. Seriously, how hard is it to just sell your soul and gain a soul? And I really don't even know how it's possible that this bff6bb2d33
