Eden RING Review: Eden Ring is an action RPG based on a fantasy Japanese spin-off of Drakengard called "THE Elden Ring Activation Code" (the original game had to be renamed for a Western audience in order to not taint Square Enix) and the sequel, 3. For those unfamiliar with the game, the setting is in a world plagued by vampires, and this game's version of vampires are called Elden. Yes, they're hot and they're dangerous. It's up to the player to travel the land, master weapons, and fight monsters to save the humans from the Elden's menace. Eden Ring was released on November 22, 2015 for $29.99 on both Steam and the PlayStation 4. The game was published by 505, and is also an upcoming release on the Nintendo Switch. The Nintendo Switch version was announced at Square Enix's recent E3 event, and features HD graphics and many of the same gameplay elements. I recently completed the game's story mode, and I can tell you that it's a very enjoyable experience. If you're looking for a fresh, unique, and quick journey in an RPG setting, Eden Ring is definitely worth checking out. The game looks great, and plays well, making this title a must-try. Graphics: 10 The graphics in Eden Ring are easily the most aesthetically pleasing part of the game. The environments are bright, rich in colors and details, and they're set in a beautiful setting. The attention to detail is strong, with multiple types of water, humans walking in every direction, and even realistic light and dark effects. Furthermore, the characters and monsters all look unique, and the environments all look like they were modeled by hand. The character models look very similar to those found in Square Enix's remake of Drakengard, but they look better, and the environments look even more real with the natural shades. The voice acting is also fantastic, featuring multiple English and Japanese voice actors that perfectly fits each character. These aspects of the game may look average on paper, but if they're put into your lap on the game's release date, you may be shocked by how good they look. Aesthetics: 10 Gameplay: 7 Gameplay is where Eden Ring shines the most. The gameplay is, as described above, what you'd find in an action RPG, with combat, exploration, leveling up, and other RPG staples. The combat in Eden bff6bb2d33

Juneau Police Chief Mike Matheson patrols Plaza on the first day of Car and Bike Week. Juneau Police say the week-long celebration of driving and riding vehicles and motorcycles kicked off with a low-key Friday morning, June 8, 2012. Authorities say alcohol consumption was not a problem and that there were no arrests. (Photo by Sara Demarest/Peninsula Clarion) The Juneau Police Department is asking the public to help them catch the person or people that break the law by using motorized vehicles on docks on lakes around Juneau. Juneau officers were called to the dock of Girdwood Lake on Thursday, June 7, to ticket people who were using them as personal watercraft. On Friday morning, June 8, officers were called back again after it was reported that a person on the Girdwood Lake dock was charging people money for the privilege. "The public is free to use the dock and beaches without having to pay any admission fees," said Juneau Police Chief Mike Matheson. "It's an open, public access area." One Girdwood resident said that he was told to pay $8 to use the dock. "He told me I had to pay to use the dock," the man, who asked not to be named, said. "But it's not like I was paying admission to go in or anything." In fact, the man said he used a parking permit from the Washington State Department of Parks and Recreation to get a permit to use the boat ramp. He admitted, however, that the permit cost him a lot of money. The man said the permit cost him about $40.00. "It's not my fault the permit costs so much," he said. "But I'd rather pay for a permit than pay to use the dock." In a press release, Matheson said that vehicles on the docks are not permitted. Matheson said that the city put up a sign on the access ramp to keep people from charging people money for using it. "That's not a sanctioned or legitimate use of the beach," Matheson said. On Friday, June 8, another person was arrested after the District 5 police officer was called to the dock. The man arrested on the Girdwood Lake
