Activator crack for ESET.Q: How to open a url from android app without activity I am developing an app that needs to have a history of links. A user clicks a link in the app, I need to open a webview in the background or have some other way to open the url in the background (not an activity). I have seen some answers that put data into the shared preferences and then open the webview, but how does the android system know this url exists if it has not been opened from the launcher yet? Is it possible to open the url in the background from the code, and in the case
